

THE COOKIE MONSTER'S 'GPT COMPLEXITY ESTIMATOR'

A CHECKLIST TO MEASURE YOUR WORKFLOW

QUESTIONS

Here's a simple list of questions and answers to better understand how to handle ChatGPT. Each response shows how much work is required, measured in 'developer cookies.'

1. Do you want to use GPT to generate summaries without adding your own rules and guidelines on how to do them?

- A. YES, and my summary data is ready 🍪
- B. YES, but my summary data is not prepared 🍪 🍪 🍪
- C. NO, the data is not ready, and it needs to be prepared and verified 🍪 🍪 🍪 🍪 🍪

2. Cookie Monster tastes cookies and has a taste defined by us: Do you want to use ChatGPT to generate summaries according to our instructions?

- A. No, it's enough that it answers the questions we put in the dataset 🍪
- B. Yes, I want it to be tailored to our needs and work according to instructions 🍪 🍪 🍪 🍪 🍪

3. Cookie Monster tastes cookies with a specific taste that often changes: Do you want to provide intensive feedback to ChatGPT to make it smarter and remember those rules?

- A. No, it's enough that it answers the questions we put in the dataset 🍪
- B. YES, I want it to continuously improve 🍪 🍪 🍪 🍪 🍪

4. Cookie Monster doesn't always come to work and takes long breaks. Do you want to find a solution that allows you to avoid problems with sudden absences at work?

- A. No, it's enough that it works when it can 🍪
- B. Yes, I need to find such a solution 🍪 🍪 🍪 🍪 🍪

5. Cookie Monster sometimes has a bad day and likes to make things up, like inedible baking cookies. Do you want to prevent such situations and teach the model to work correctly in the most unusual cases possible?

- A. No, it's enough that it answers the questions we put in the dataset 🍪
- B. Yes, I want the model to work correctly, even in edge cases 🍪 🍪 🍪 🍪 🍪

RESULTS

5-10 COOKIES

Oops! Your dish seems pretty simple, but it might not be to everyone's taste. With this number of cookies, your ChatGPT might just be a basic snack that's not worth serving customers (at least not without a warning). But hey, every chef has to start somewhere – this could be the beginning of your incredible career in the world of ChatGPT!

10-15 COOKIES

Oh dear, it looks like the Cookie Monster has a bit more work than you thought! Your project has medium complexity, but there's no need to worry. With the right amount of determination (and cookies!), you'll hit your goal. Just remember to take a break from baking every now and then.

15-25 COOKIES

Attention, we've got a true pastry chef here! Your project might be complicated, but nothing is impossible for you and your Cookie Monster. Brace yourself for hours of baking and cookie tasting, but prepare to create a masterpiece that delights your customers!